

BRADY HARE

In the Workplace

Brady Hare retired from his role as a Senior Executive at Grainger after nearly three decades with the organization! He keeps busy by helping to grow his wife's dance business and started a consulting practice, Capital H Advisors, where he provides advisory services to CEOs and other senior leaders for improving the performance of their sales organizations. In his words, "I have been blessed in my career with having to solve several complex challenges. Those experiences have provided lots of learning opportunities. I enjoy having the opportunity to share those learnings with others as they work to solve problems and get the most out of their teams." He believes that "perspective and experiences matter when you're trying to make big things happen in large organizations."

At Home

Brady says that his family currently revolves around their newest member, his granddaughter Prudence! When he isn't doting on her, he loves spending time with other family members and working on his fitness.

With CHMO

Brady joined our Board after his first Sleep Out. He was at a point in his life where he wanted a more structured way to give back to his community, and CHMO provided an avenue for that. He says that our mission aligns well with his personal values and CH's work, "shines a bright light on an often dark and misunderstood part of our society." As a member of our Capital Committee, he is able to keep one foot in the future of CHMO to expand our capabilities while keeping the other, "firmly rooted in the financial fundamentals that make the organization 'go' and create room for further investment." He loves challenging the leadership team and Board to think differently, approaching problems and opportunities with a "Why Not?" perspective.
